

Murray River Red Gum Trail

Albury Wodonga

Parklands Albury Wodonga

66km river trail

40 chicane gates

10 river access points

8 elevated walkways

7 bridges

protection of biodiversity picnic facilities

protective fencing

New Trail, New Adventures

The Murray River Red Gum Trail is a new project extending the Wagirra and Gateway Island trails to Lake Hume. It will form the upper section of Murray Regional Tourism's Murray River Adventure Trail.

Utilising waterfront crown reserves to showcase the unique riverine landscape, the Murray River Red Gum Trail will be a major high quality asset supporting tourism in the Albury Wodonga area.

This community-managed nature trail will provide public access to the river for a range of day use recreational activities. The trail will complement current regional trails, providing a different setting and offering new experiences.

Parklands Albury Wodonga will partner with community, business and government to establish and manage this exciting new venture.

Trail for many reasons and all seasons

- Complements the development of Gateway Island
- Aligns with Victorian and NSW Tourism outcomes
- Improves access for increased foreshore restoration works
- Is an exciting new project for community involvement and wellbeing
- Delivers a new attraction that will enhance visitation to the region

Murray River Red Gum Trail: Stage 1 accessibility

Murray River Red Gum Trail: Stage 2 connectivity

